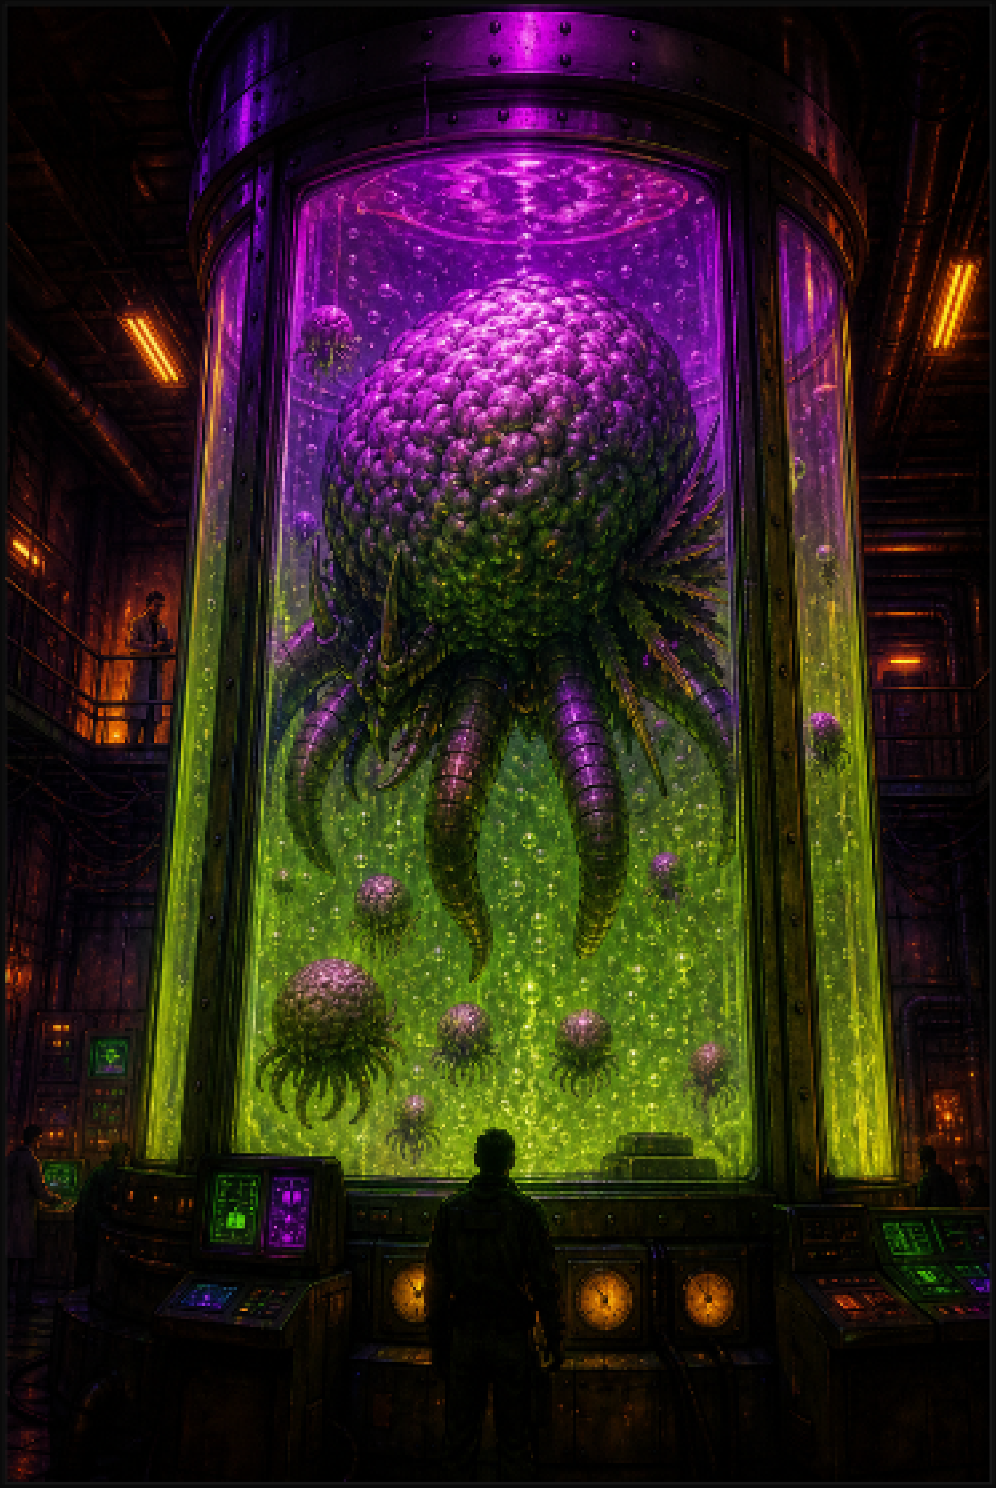
STEP 01 · DEFINE

DEFINE THE CREATURE

A creature is not a brand yet. Start by locking what must stay recognizable.



BRAND BRIEF

Goal: turn one creature into a repeatable product world.

Keep: anatomy, palette, mood, and world.
Avoid: real brands, real logos, existing franchises, and readable AI text.

STEP 02 · DNA

BUILD THE BRAND DNA

Short, visible rules keep the board readable before the generations start.

GOAL

— One creature
— One brand system

TONE

— Eerie
— Playful
— Collectible
— Retro sci-fi

VISUAL RULES

— Green
— Violet
— Orange
— Black
— Lab graphics

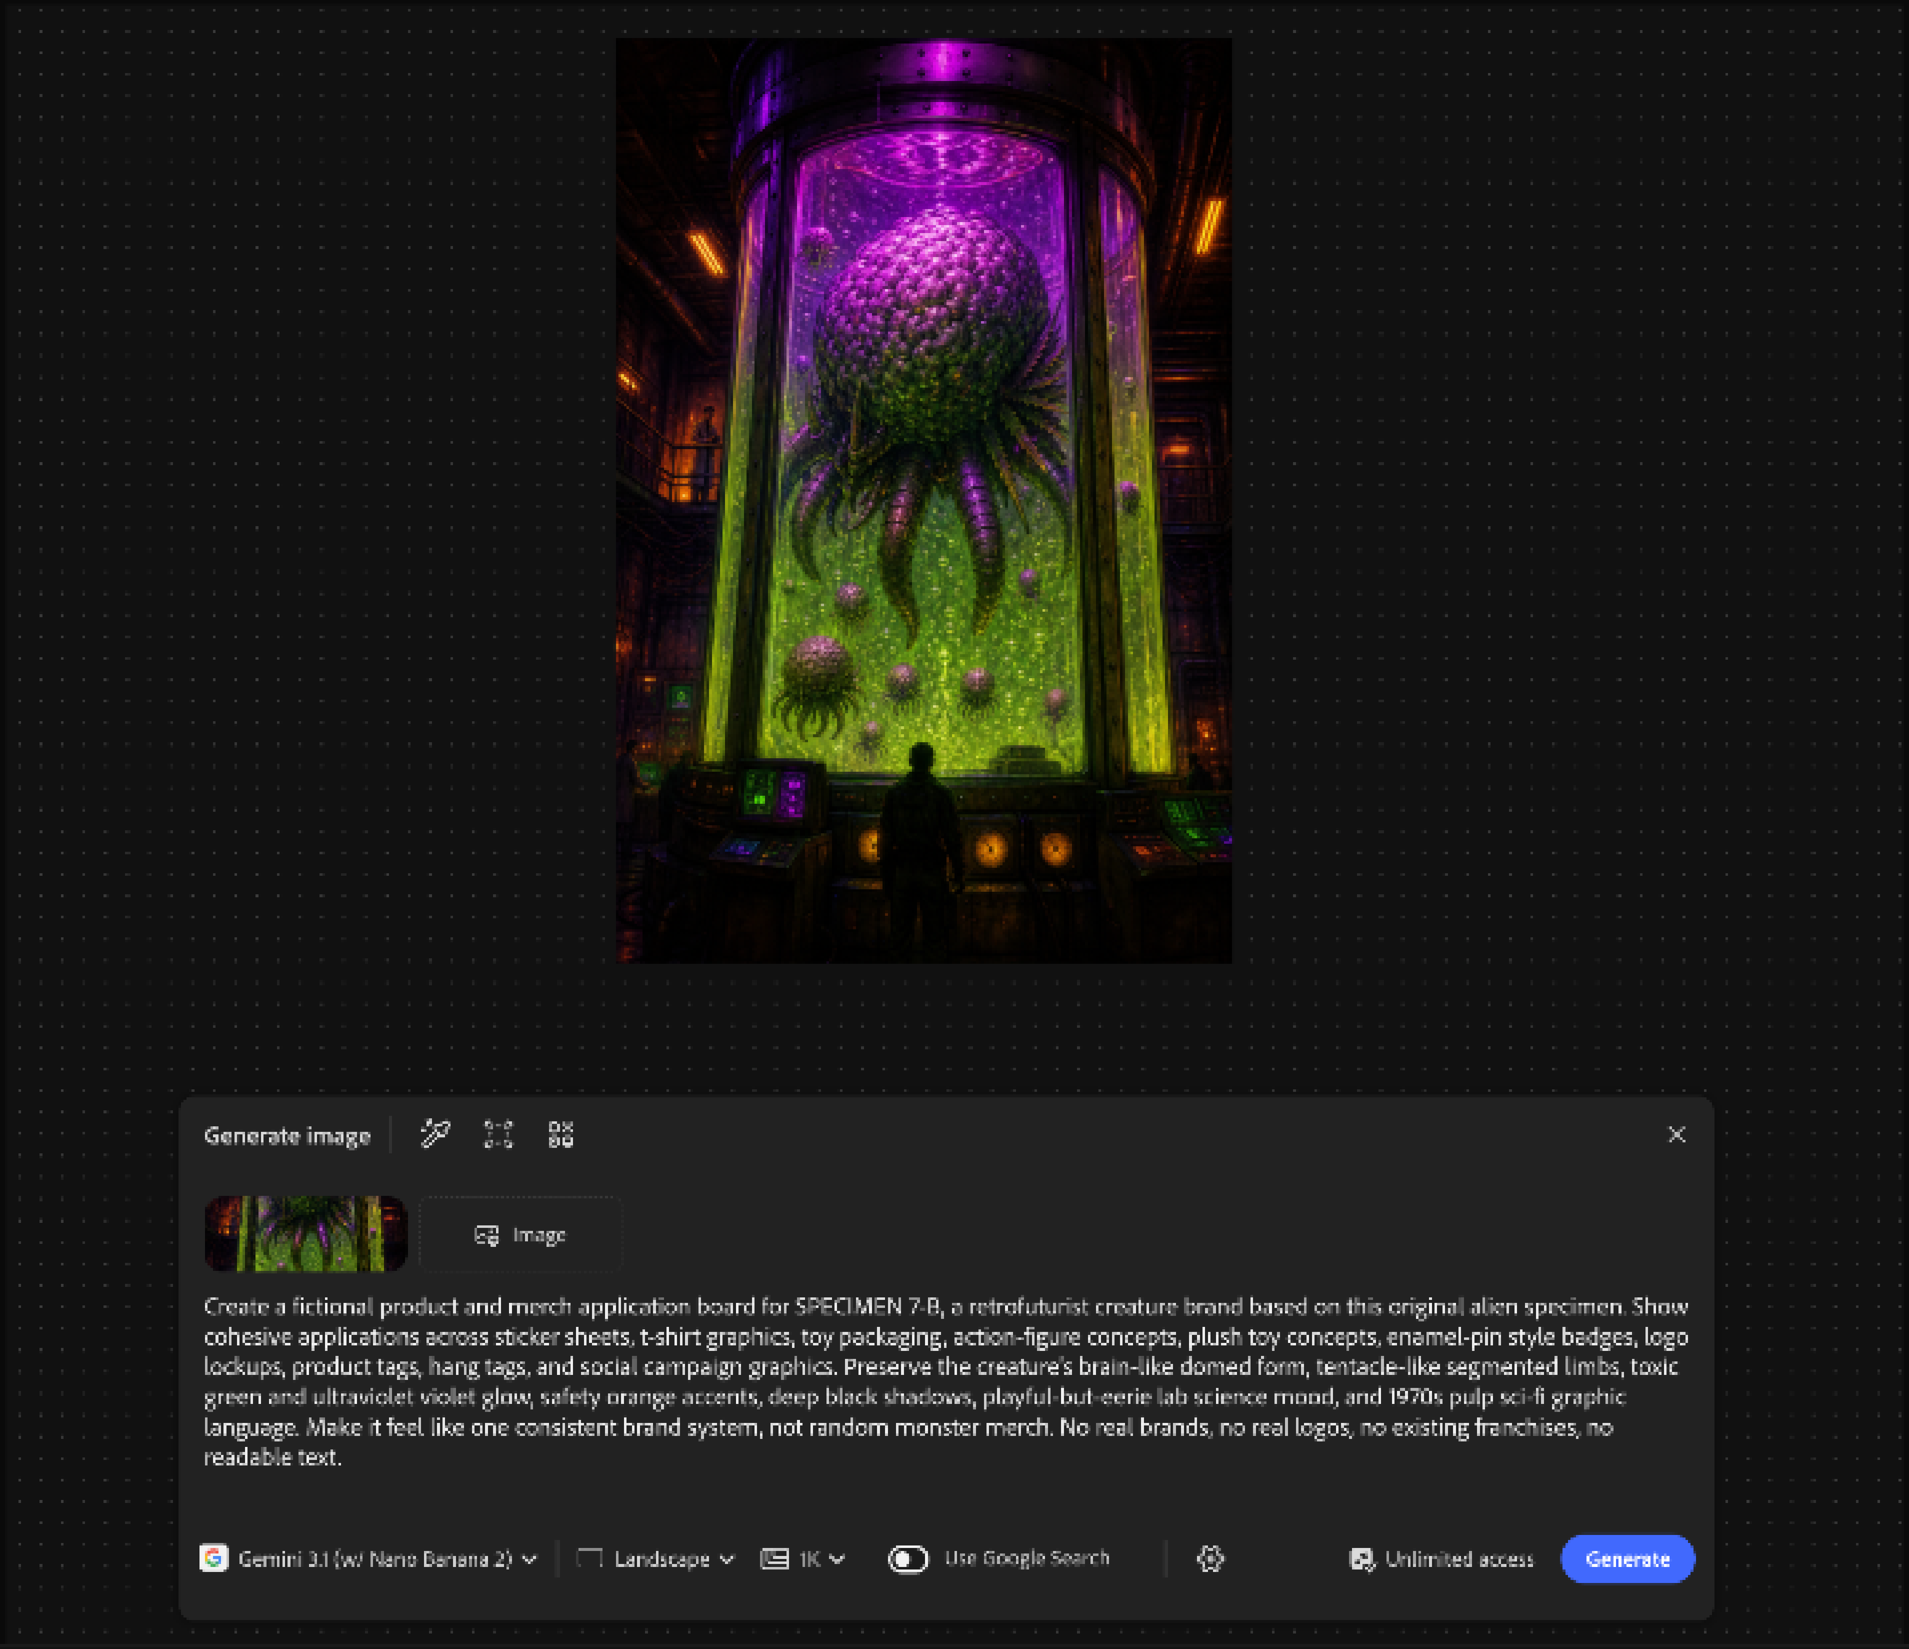
AVOID

— Real brands
— Real logos
— Existing franchises
— Readable AI text

STEP 03 · EXPLORE

PROMPT THE PRODUCT WORLD

Use the creature as a reference, then ask Firefly for a whole product system.



Create a fictional product and merch application board for SPECIMEN 7-B, a retrofuturist creature brand based on this original alien specimen. Show cohesive applications across sticker sheets, t-shirt graphics, toy packaging, action-figure concepts, plush toy concepts, enamel-pin style badges, logo lockups, product tags, hang tags, and social campaign graphics. Preserve the creature's brain-like domed form, tentacle-like segmented limbs, toxic green and ultraviolet violet glow, safety orange accents, deep black shadows, playful-but-eerie lab science mood, and 1970s pulp sci-fi graphic language. Make it feel like one consistent brand system, not random monster merch. No real brands, no real logos, no existing franchises, no readable text.
